

“Strolling through the Bluegrass”
With Vernon and Kitty McIntyre

An Opportunity to Learn, Hear and Try-out Bluegrass Instruments

Bluegrass music is a uniquely American music created from the wide variety of styles, instruments, and rhythms brought to the US by the early settlers. The lively sound of the music has recently been brought into the national spotlight by the hit movie, Oh Brother, Where Art Thou.

Vernon McIntyre is uniquely suited to take someone Strolling through the Bluegrass. He is a walking history of the music. He has traveled the road as a performer since the early 1960s and has played at innumerable venues across the US and Canada. He has played on stage with most of the founding artists and talked backstage with them personally. His knowledge of the history and lore of the music and it’s instruments is encyclopedic; every performance conveys his fascination with the music and the instruments.

Vernon’s wife, Kitty McIntyre, entered the bluegrass arena as a fiddler in the early 1980s. Her training was in classical violin, but the sound of the bluegrass fiddle caught her interest. Kitty has studied the fiddling of the original bluegrass artists, especially Scot Stoneman and Kenny Baker. She has traveled & performed with Vernon McIntyre’s Appalachian Grass since 1982. She teaches a large number of weekly private students and has conducted workshops and seminars at various festivals. Kitty and her fiddling polecat, Rody LaPew, add a touch of humor to the program with their trick fiddling grande finale.

Strolling through the Bluegrass is a comfortable conversation with Vernon and Kitty about the typical bluegrass instruments, fiddle, banjo, guitar, and mandolin. Dulcimers, lutes, piccolo banjos, parlor guitars, a double neck guitar, various tipples and ukeleles, plus other oddities are also on display and part of the conversation. Vernon and Kitty demonstrate each of the typical instruments during the discussion.

People often enjoy the chance to see and feel an object in addition to just hearing about it. As part of the Strolling through the Bluegrass program, one of each of the typical bluegrass instruments is passed through the audience so each person gets a chance to see it up close, feel it, and actually try to play it. A cut-away violin and cut-away guitar are also passed through the audience. These are actual instruments sawed in half to reveal the internal workings of the instruments.

Program Details: Strolling through the Bluegrass can be tailored to the audience age group.

For 4th and 5th graders, about 60 minutes works well. We do require adult supervision with student groups.

For adults, the program runs about 90 minutes.

Examples of the unique instruments presented during Strolling through the Bluegrass

Contact Information

Famous Old Time Music Company

Phone 513-607-1874

Web: www.fotmc.com

Email: fotmc@iglou.com

December 21, 2015

SUBJECT: Letter of Recommendation

TO: Whom It May Concern

I am writing to highly recommend Vernon and Kitty McIntyre as hard-driving, old-time, bluegrass musicians. On November 2, 2015, they presented a wonderful program for our Goodyear, Arizona, active adult retirement community in our very full Renaissance Theater. In addition to their foot-stomping music which brought our audience to its feet, they demonstrated thirty or more instruments and explained how each one worked. Our community LOVED their performance! They are truly professional performers and extremely good at what they do!

If I can provide any further information, I will be most happy to oblige.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Dennis DeFrain".

Dennis DeFrain
Co-Chair, LifeLong Learning at PebbleCreek
623 535-3102
dcdefrain@cox.net

discover life after 50

November 5, 2015

Dear Kitty and Vernon,

Thanks for bringing your music and talents to DASIS Albuquerque last Friday! We always ask for feedback and comments from attendees included; learned a lot; loved the chatter between performers; superb; and loved their music.

I'm glad Albuquerque was on your circuit

Thanks again ~ Kathleen Pashob

STROLLING THROUGH THE BLUEGRASS

Display of Instruments

Demo of mandolin and banjo

Antique Banjo

Antique Violin

Antique Mandolin

Piccolo Banjo